About

Though its name evokes the bright Gamay gulpers of Beaujolais, the Gant & Co. 'Nouveau' is a fresh and crunchy light red that was inspired by the palhete style of Portugal. Matt has spent decades working in Portugal, and this white-meets-red style is a testament to all that he has learned there. In the spirit of all nouveau wines, this fun blend is made to be drunk slightly chilled, without needing a single impetus for doing so.

The grapes come from three different blocks within the estate vineyard. They are whole-bunch, co-fermented in picking bins for six days before being pressed off and sent to mature French oak demi-muids for four months. Malo is not prevented. After aging, the wines are bottled with just a small dosage of sulfur.

Tasting Notes

A crunchy, delicious light red. Tart red fruit aromas jump from the glass, and on the palate, are joined with an herbal savoriness. The acidity is crisp and inviting, and the tannins are chalky. Beautiful, bright stuff.
