'FIELD STREET'

Shiraz

"This doesn't need cellaring, although it will last some distance, and it doesn't need hours in a decanter. Just enjoy it; it is lighter-framed, laced with neat tannins, bright acidity and with a core of succulent fruit abetted by prosciutto and woody spices. Importantly, this has drinkability stamped all over it." - James Halliday

Shiraz

"This has some intense red plums and berries with a flurry of woody spices and a briary edge. The palate is succulent, juicy and supple with attractive flavors of ripe blackberries, plums and raspberries. Holds really fresh. Drink or hold. Screw cap."

'FIELD STREET'

Shiraz

"Steve Pannell's self-described "house style" Shiraz is a bright, fruity and modern bottling. Red and black berries bounce from the glass, with licorice, vanilla and a soy sauce-like umami character far behind. The palate is as light and juicy as the nose suggests, held firmly in place with chalky tannins." - Christina Pickard
